A STUPENDOUS ACHIEVEMENT

RABBI F. M. ISSERMAN

We visited the Hadassah Fair and marvelled at its stupendous proportions. Efficiency, executive ability, business acumen, devotion to a cause, sacrificing service were evident on all sides. That that achievement was the work of a small group of enterprising and energetic women seems hardly credible. In all our communal experience, we know of no similar project carried out by women on such a large scale. It bespeaks love for a beautiful ideal. If all of our communal activities could summon forth the enthusiasm and the work generated by the Hadassah "machine," the Toronto Jewish community would soon rank with the best on the continent. In this era of feministic emancipation for mah-jongg and bridge, we hail this group of workers who love to play but who also have the character to serve.

A GRACIOUS GESTURE

For several months the Talmud Torah had been planning to stage their campaign for funds to pay off a mortgage which was overdue. When all their teams were organized, the date for the opening of their campaign set, and some of their propaganda in the mails, they were informed that their campaign would conflict with that of Federation. They readily agreed to postpone their campaign and to give Federation right of way. This gracious gesture of sportsmanship alone, without considering the genuine merits of the cause of Talmud Torah, should rally all Jews of Toronto to the assistance of those few who in the past years have carried the heavy load of indebtedness for that splendid institution and now ask the public for relief.

THE SPIRITUAL NOTE IN IMMIGRATION

Despite the fact that the recent immigration agitation has been discussed largely by ecclesiastics, none, to our knowledge, has sounded the spiritual note. Nationalism, tribalism and venom have characterized much of the discussion. Who after all made Canada? Not the British! Not the French! No, not even the Indians! Who raised Canada's beetling mountains? Who stretched out her rolling prairies? Who fructified her soil? Who filled her hills with mineral wealth? Who ploughed the courses for her rivers? Who made the basins for her lakes? Who surrounded her with mighty oceans? Who filled her with majestic beauty? Not puny man! Who but God accomplished all that? And the people inhabiting Canada at the present time are but the stewards of the wealth which God through nature has produced through centuries and ages.

Our immigration restrictionists remind us at times of the medieval feudal barons who set aside huge tracts of land for their hunting pleasures. Around them high fences were set up, and signs warning against poaching were posted. Whoever dare to trespass there was liable to be executed if caught. No matter how hungry the masses; no matter what the shortage of food; no matter what the need for

"ZIONISTS" AND POLITICS

In a New York newspaper we read the rather startling news that the "Zionists" had been instructed by the head of the organization to vote for Hoover. It was expected that they would obey the order and vote 100 per cent. for the Republican candidate.

Fear not, reader, this paragraph did not refer to the Jewish Zionists, the subjects of Weizmann and Louis Lipsky. Can you conceive of them obeying the command of a leader to the letter? As a matter of fact, judging from the campaign literature which reached our notice it appeared as if the newly formed agency was fairly evenly divided in the matter of the choice of candidates. The Zionist element apparently inclined towards Smith with such names as Stephen Wise, Nathan Strauss, Morris Rothenberg, Susan Brandeis and Samuel Untermyer, adorning the list of Smith supporters. On the other hand, chief among the pro-Hooverites were the names of Louis Marshall and Felix Warburg, the heads of the non-Zionists hosts.

The Zionists, who unanimously supported Hoover, were the disciples of the Zion church, residents of Zion City, officially known as Zionists. And strangely there was dissension even among the "Zionists," for there were 112 dissenters in Zion City who voted for Smith in contravention of the official edict. But the explanation is vouchsafed that these dissenters must have been strangers in the city, non-Zionists, as it were. We daresay that before the next presidential election campaign an enlarged agency will be formed in Zion City embracing both the Zionists and the non-Zionist so that a united front may be presented.

DAVID FRISCHMAN

The Toronto Jewish community is this week being honoured by a visit of Madam Lily Frischman, widow of David Frischman, the great Hebrew poet and writer.

David Frischman ranked among the first four or five figures in modern Hebrew literature. He had considerable talent as a poet. He was brilliant as an essayist, critic and stylist. In addition to his original writings he contributed a series of translations of world classics, including Nietsche's "Thus Spake Zarathustra" and George Eliot's "Daniel Doranda." Unlike many of his contemporaries Frischman never associated himself with any of the political movements that grew up in Jewish life. He was pre-eminently a literary man, observing life objectively, and keeping in contact with the literary currents throughout the world. In this wise he managed to preserve his broad outlook on life, and saved his critical faculties from becoming warped by subjective notions. He was ever fresh, vigorous, trenchant.

Madam Frischman is here on a mission in connection with the publication of her great husband's works. We trust that our community will accord her the support which she merits both by her own charming personality and by virtue of her relationship to the great writer, David Frischman.

The "FAME" Virgin Milk
(Genuine Simroy-Galtier Formula)
Will permanently whiten and beautify the skin
This beneficial skin tonic does a rare thing—it whitens the skin naturally. Other skin whiteners leave a coat of white powder on the skin, but this amazingly satisfactory milk whitens the skin itself, giving it a satiny finish. If you would have your skin appear at its best this winter, try it at once.

arable land, these feudal lords held on to their preserves for their selfish pleasure.

So seem our restrictionists. Here we are in a large empty country—not one-fifth of whose arable land is cultivated. In Europe there are thousands upon thousands who live in overpopulated lands. They clamor for admission to Canada. They see their children anaemic and stunted because of a lack of economic opportunity. They could come here, develop this country, and win economic freedom for themselves and their children. But like feudal barons smug in possession of their preserves, our restrictionists would hoist high the sign of no trespassing. What insolence against God, who created the earth for the enjoyment of man! The duty of Canadians is clear. We are God's stewards for a vast continent. Our stewardship must be administered, if our religion is not pretense and sham, in the interests of struggling and suffering humanity. As long as one acre of land is untilled, one mine unworked, we must admit those who knock at our gates provided they possess no physical, moral or mental taints.

"ONER" AT ELM RIDGE

L. M. Fingard, club captain of the Elm Ridge Golf Club, scored a hole in one yesterday when he negotiated the 185-yard fifth. Mr. Fingard was playing at the time with J. P. Levee, Wm. Heilig and R. Glickman. It was the second time that an ace has been scored in the history of the course. About two weeks ago J. P. Levee performed the feat for the first time, when Mr. Fingard was a member of the foursome.

SUES FOR $10,000; GETS $1,500

Contributory negligence on the part of Mrs. Wolf Pressman, who was killed by a street car at Namur, a small station between St. Laurent and Cartierville, caused Mr. Justice Archer to reduce the amount of damages claimed by her husband in an action taken in the Superior Court against the Montreal Tramways Company. Pressman sued for $10,000 and was awarded $1,500.

Mr. and Mrs. Pressman were waiting at Namur station for a street car which would take them to Cartierville. The station was little more than a shelter, but they waited there until they saw a car approaching, when they crossed the tracks preparatory to embarking on the farther side of the right-of-way. Pressman crossed safely, but his wife was struck by the car and thrown into a nearby field. She died immediately.

In his action before the Superior Court Pressman claimed that the motorman had been negligent in that he approached the station at high speed and did not have his car under control. Moreover, it was claimed, the Tramways Company should have installed a safety platform for the convenience of travellers who found it necessary to cross the tracks in order to get a car.

Mr. Justice Archer concluded that the motorman was at fault for driving too fast, but His Lordship also decided that Mrs. Pressman, although she had a right to cross the tracks, had not exercised proper caution. The court set the damages at $3,000 and, because of the contributory negligence, reduced this amount by half and awarded Pressman $1,500.

I AM WATCHING TORONTO

Good news reached my desk this morning. Toronto is also inaugurating a College of Jewish Studies. Holy Blossom congregation has my congratulations for venturing out! Now I am anxious to learn how many Jewish Torontonians will take the opportunity of going to "cheder" once more and learning and perhaps re-learning the glorious story of the Jew! Yes, there will be excuses on the part of many. The particular night selected for study will not meet with the schedule of those who have card clubs, etc. But the spiritual aristocrats will turn out even at the expense of parties and what not! So, Torontonians, I am watching you. The school in Montreal has gone beyond our expectations. Over two hundred and fifty men and women meet every Monday night in the Temple. More than that. Our Temple Emanu-El College has even been the inspiration for a few other shuls. And I am hearing of classes in higher Jewish education being established in many synagogues and labeled "Institutes." It is about time that something be "instituted" everywhere to eradicate this disease of "ignorance" about Jew and Judaism that is eating up the vitalities of Jewish life. History testifies that no Jewish community which relies solely on "prayer and charity" can survive. Did not the Hellenic Jewish community of Egypt perish because they neglected the study of Torah? It is about time that Canadian Jewry made a "drive" or a "campaign" in the cause of Jewish education. Even annual drives would be worthwhile, perhaps more worthwhile than the mere begging for "our poor Jews!" What about those Jews who are poverty stricken spiritually? So in a word, I am watching all those who are following the lead of Temple Emanu-El in the course of Jewish education—but especially am I keeping an eye on Toronto.

JEWISH FRATERNITY HOUSES

During the past week I had the pleasure of spending some time in Jewish fraternity homes. "I talked it over" with the college boys and I found them a healthy minded Jewish group of men. It seems to me that a Rabbi in Israel can be of tremendous service to college men. These have doubts about almost everything in life. And doubt is the privilege of every thinking student.

The rabbi can help somewhat in clearing in matters of a doubtful nature, especially in the realm of spiritual life. The rabbi may even "suggest" that Jewish Fraternity Homes have something of the Jewish atmosphere. In every such home ought to be found books of Jewish interest. The walls may even be covered with the photographs of "our Jewish Great." These are helpful in making Jewish Fraternity Homes "Jewish." What do you say, boys?

IS IT TRUE?

A reader of Commentaries points out that in Montreal there are apartment houses owned by Jews where Jewish tenants are not wanted! Can this be true? A Jew who discriminates against his fellow Jews in such a manner stands condemned. He can be classed as a Jewish anti-Semite.

JEWISH PROFESSIONAL MEN LEAD

When one takes stock of Jewish community leadership in Montreal he finds few professional men at the helm of things. Our big business men by far overcrowd the executive boards of the many organizations. Many of these business men are fine visionary souls. But occasionally the man who possesses a college degree may be of benefit to Jewish institutions. A Jewish institution is not only a matter of business administration. And though the professional men may be young they have something to offer "for the good and welfare." I sometimes believe that men in the professions are somewhat timid to lead. They are afraid. After all, at a board meeting they might disagree with "Chayim Shmeril." And this "Chayim" may possess wealth. He is liable to keep away the "clients" and what not. . . . If this be the

The power of public opinion in England and the United States to react on foreign governments is seen in the promise of complete abolition of the numerous clauses in Hungarian universities. Despatches say that the Hungarian Government is considering the removal of all barriers to education on religious grounds with no restrictions placed on Jews entering universities and technical schools other than scholastic qualifications. The same despatches give as the cause for this enlightened stand on the part of the Hungarian Government concern over unfavourable comments on Hungary educational policy printed in Europe and in this country. In other words, this is one of the impressive ways that money talks. In this country education is free to everyone, even when the Jews take most of the prizes. This country looks with acute disfavour on restrictions on education for religious reasons. Public opinion would thus not favour loans to a country where anti-Jewish excesses would start as a protest against the forced admission of eight Jewish girls above the accepted number of Jews in universities. It is noteworthy that twelve students arrested in the anti-Jewish riots were sons of members of parliament. Also that professors at the University of Budapest were among those encouraging the rioters. Also that when the state secretary in parliament said that the Government would take "energetic measures" there was loud laughter from the opposition benches. Students have been beaten, universities have been closed, arrests made, rioters fined and all that. But there is promise of quiet. The Hungarian Government has such a good reason for being heart-broken over it all. It can't afford to have its international reputation damaged by unfortunate reports.

In view of the heat and spite generated during the presidential election in the United States, an editorial in "The Baptist," official newspaper of the Northern Baptist Convention, is outstanding as one of the few expressions of its kind coming from the Protestants. The writer said in part:

"One of the vices of majorities is a habit of claiming a monopoly of possession, power and rights. In the United States this vice takes the form of claiming the nation for the major group. Because more people profess to follow Christianity than any other religion, this is called by some Christians a Christian country; for a similar reason, a Protestant country, a white man's country, an Anglo-Saxon country, and so on. Such assumption on the part of majorities of any sort contains a vicious fallacy. Rights are not measured by numbers. A nation that has 4,000,000 Jews, 12,000,000 Negroes, 18,000,000 Catholics and more than 40,000,000 people of other origins than English, is neither Christian, Protestant, white nor Anglo-Saxon. It is what it is, a mixed nation, with population classifiable on lines that run crisscross in many directions, and with all groups equally American and equally entitled to all American rights. This is not even a business men's country, or a capitalist country. It is everybody's country. Whenever any group shall arrogate to itself special prerogatives and dictatorial powers, a revolution of the sort provided in the national constitution is morally and politically due."

This courageous warning on the eve of election was a still small voice drowned out by ministers who, speaking from the pulpit in many instances, made anti-Catholicism an issue in American politics. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt appealed to 2,000 ministers at the Ohio Conference of the Methodist Church to vote as Methodists for Hoover and the conference voted unanimously to support him. Other churchmen, writing in their official papers, pointed out the plain duty of all Protestants to vote for Hoover and thus keep out the Catholic menace which seeks to unite church and state.

This election brought out more clearly than ever that if there is a church menace it is a Protestant church menace and that any religious oppression against the smaller denominations comes from the majority church. Bills in legislatures calling for Bible reading in the schools, the Ku Klux Klan, the passage of the Tennessee law against the teaching of evolution, and the state referendum in Arkansas forbidding the teaching of evolution, are all the work of the Protestant Fundamentalists making their wishes come true by law. No body of Catholics dared publicly to endorse Smith for president. The Protestants would have humourlessly cried, "Aha! They're at it again." But any religious body of Protestants dared without hesitation to endorse Hoover if for no other reason than to shoulder out the Catholic contender. The Protestant church was the only publicly for granted generally. Churches accusing it of destroying the balance of church and state could only be minority churches.

It should be evident to the Protestant upholders of the Protestant traditions of the country that the reason there can be no Catholic peril is that they themselves hold a monopoly on menace to the state through connection with the church. When the majority church tells its members how to vote, then separation between church and state vanishes into thin air. When the Protestants do it, it is, of course, all right in the eyes of the Protestants to link up church and state. It is then no peril, just pure joy. The time it is peril and menace and danger is when the Catholics or Jews come forward. Since they are in the minority the Protestants have nothing to worry about. But the character of the country as a whole has. It is definitely in an era of Protestant menace producing sectarian bloc

FROM MY DIARY

Late at night we called on the rabbi. He poured out his soul. A few weeks ago there was a lack of bread. He stood in line with others to receive his portion doled out by Government officials. But he was informed that he cannot receive bread, he is not a Communist and belongs to the non-producing group of society. He pleaded that bread be given at least for his children. The reply: "The ancestry of these is of an inferior type." What a tragedy the Talmudic Chachonim is present-day Russia are experiencing! They who were at the top of matters are now beneath peasant and cobbler.

SUNSHINE AND SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

With the days getting colder, and with the holiday adventurer hankering for a change, glorious tropical Florida and the Gulf Coast offer untold havens of rest. For there is warm golden sunshine, with stretches and stretches of beautiful beaches. It is indeed a paradise where you can fish, hunt, ride, golf and play tennis, and if you like the sparkling waters of the ocean you will bathe, sail your yacht to your heart's content. Florida, too, is the home of music and art where the finest examples of theatres and art galleries abound. There are countless resorts and wonder spots where the tired business man can gain a real recuperation, and if he has never visited Miami he will learn with zest all the charms of this charming Florida town.

It Came to Pass That——

This CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW feature must prove of absorbing interest to all its readers, especially the young folks. It is a history of the Jewish people through centuries recorded by days. Buy a loose-leaf note book, clip this account and paste it in. If you do this every week, in time you will possess a hand-book of value. The historian is Dr. Cecil Roth, of London, England, fellow of the Royal Historical Society, author and essayist.

NOVEMBER 16TH.

Executions through El Santo Nino de la Guardia, 1491. In the June of the previous year, six Marranos and five Jews were arrested on the charge of having tortured a Christian child from La Guardia to death, for ritual purposes. With the heart and a portion of the Host which they had stolen, they were alleged to have made a magical concoction with the object of frustrating the plans of the Inquisition and exterminating the Christians from the country. The chief witness was a half-wit Jewish boy, from whom a priest, posing as a Rabbi, was said to have received a confession. Torquemada, recently appointed Grand Inquisitor, eagerly pushed on the prosecution; it was precisely the opportunity he had wanted to prove the fact that the connection between the Marranos and their Jewish brothers was still close, and that the Inquisition was therefore a vital necessity. The result of the trial was accordingly a foregone conclusion. After horrible tortures had been inflicted upon the prisoners, the inevitable "confessions" were extorted and they were all burned alive. It was this episode which finally established the hold of the Inquisition upon Spain and which convinced Ferdinand and Isabella of the imperative necessity of expelling the Jews. Modern research, however, has proved, not only that the charge was a fabrication from beginning to end, but that the "martyred" child himself never, as a matter of fact, actually existed.

NOVEMBER 17TH.

Earthquake at Ferrara, 1571. The shock was terrible and caused great damage. Though (it seemed miraculous) none of the eleven synagogues of the town were injured; the Jews joined the other inhabitants in a general exodus to the country, disregarding in their terror even the sanctity of the Sabbath. Amongst them was a certain modest scholar named Azariah de' Rossi, who had recently come from Bologna in consequence of the expulsion of the Jews from that city by order of the Pope. In the country (where owing to the recurrence of the shocks he remained for some time), Azariah made the acquaintance of a certain Christian student, a refugee like himself, who was passing his time in reading the apocryphal Letter of Aristeas. At one point, a difficulty arising, he asked his temporary Jewish neighbour what was the reading of the Hebrew in that passage. To his shame, the other was forced to reply that no Hebrew text existed, and that the work, though Jewish in origin, was virtually unknown amongst the Jews. This was the genesis of his famous work, the Meor Anayim or "Enlightenment of the Eyes," in which Hebrew literature and history were considered in the light of those sources now extant only in Greek, and the critical principles of the Renaissance were applied for the first time to Jewish records. To this work is prefixed a graphic account of the earthquake which was the indirect cause of this new venture.

NOVEMBER 18TH.

Institution of "Pulverpurim," 1804. On that date (Kislev 15th, 5565), the powder magazine at Vilna blew up, occasioning much loss of life and the destruction of several houses. One of these was that of Abraham Danzig, (1747-1820), the author of the Hayye Adam and Hokmat Adam—the most important productions in the sphere of codification since the Shulkan Arukh, which attained a remarkable success throughout the Jewish world. He and his family were all wounded as a result of the disaster, and he lost almost his entire fortune. All, however, escaped with their lives. In commemoration of this deliverance, Abraham Danzig instituted an annual private celebration of the event. A feast was to be held, to which Talmudic scholars were to be invited; and alms were to be distributed to the poor. This was to be observed by all of his descendants for all time upon the evening following Kislev 15th, each year.

NOVEMBER 19TH.

Death of Emma Lazarus, 1887. She was the most distinguished Jewish poetess that America (and perhaps the English-speaking world as a whole) has as yet produced. Born in New York in 1849, she made her name known first of all by occasional verses in which Jewish interest was almost absent. It was the persecution of the Jews in Russia and the consequent emigration to the United States which aroused her Jewish consciousness. From this period, she began to occupy herself with little else. From then date her best-known works—The Dance to Death, a dramatic poem, and the collection of verses, By the Waters of Babylon. At the same time, she began to occupy herself with Jewish literature, and translated into English some of the masterpieces of the Spanish-Hebrew school. Her sonnet, entitled The New Colossus, received the unique honour of being affixed to the Statue of Liberty at the entrance to New York harbour.

NOVEMBER 20TH.

Death of Menasseh Ben Israel, 1657. Rabbi, mystic, theologian, printer and linguist, he had found (as he thought) his life's mission in procuring the readmission of the Jews into England. For this object, he had worked for many years; and at last he had risen from a bed of sickness to go on his famous mission to Oliver Cromwell. The Whitehall Conference had been called (December, 1655), but had been dissolved without reaching any conclusion; and the Lord Protector, though sympathetically inclined, refused to commit himself. The handful of furtive Jews in London contented themselves with the barest toleration; instead of that millenary welcome of which Menasseh had dreamed. Broken hearted, he set out for his home, bearing with him the body of his beloved son, Samuel, who had died in London. When he was arrived at Middleburg, in Holland, his sickness grew on him again and he passed away there, in his brother-in-law's house, in Kislev, 5418, in his fifty-third year.

NOVEMBER 21ST.

Martyrdom of Abba in Ispahan, 1619. The settlement of the Jews in Persia was ancient, and had continued unbroken down from remotest antiquity. It was only in the seventeenth century, under the Sufi dynasty, that their tranquillity was broken. The example was set by Shah Abbas I, who instituted a persecution against the Jews of capital. It was in consequence of this that Abba, a person distinguished for his wealth and his piety, experienced martyrdom; while many of his coreligionists were forced to abjure their religion. Shah Abbas II followed the example set by his father, and instituted on a trivial pretext a general persecution. In consequence of this the ancient glories of Persian Jewry were shorn away. A large class of crypto-Jews came into being, conforming outwardly (like the Marranos of Spain and Portugal) to the dominant faith. The wretched remnant lived on in utter degradation. Thus East and West met for once in the story of Israel's suffering.

NOVEMBER 22ND.

Massacre at Asolo, 1547. This little city, near Treviso (Italy) harboured at the time a tiny Jewish community consisting of thirty-seven persons all told. On no pretext, it was entered by a band of thirty armed men, headed by one Antonio Parisotto, who attacked the Jews with the utmost ferocity. Ten persons were killed outright, and eight more wounded. Their houses were then sacked by the robbers, who fled with the booty. Many of them were subsequently brought to justice, and were executed or exiled. The majority of the survivors took refuge in one of the neighbouring cities—among them, the ancestor of the famous Cantarini family, who went to Padua. This was one of the very few events even remotely resembling a pogrom, which is recorded in the history of the Jews in Italy.

Thanksgiving Day must have been a nice Monday to many housewives who still operate a basement laundry in the home on other Mondays. We suggest our services to such women. There are five different kinds of "family wash" done in this laundry, all different and all moderately priced. No home method can compare with any one of them as to quality of work, cost, or labor saving. Why not let us prove it to you and give you all your Mondays free of the wash problems.

WINNIPEG CHILD VIOLINIST IN RECITAL

A violin valued at $35,000 was played by a 13-year-old girl in her debut recital. The girl is Kayla Mitzl (Clarice Mitchell). She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mitchell, of Winnipeg. The former is a grain operator and financier. She has been studying in San Francisco since last January with Louis Persinger, teacher of Yehudi Menuhin. The violin is one known to musicians as the Lipinski and was loaned for Kayla's debut Tuesday, October 30, at Scottish Rite Auditorium. Lipinski, a violinst, who was a contemporary of Paganini, played the instrument in most of the courts of Europe. The violin was made by Joseph Guarnerius at Cremona in 1737. For Kayla her debut recital was more than of usual importance for upon the result depended the decision of a father reluctant to have her pursue a musical career. Ysaye and Ottokar Sevcik, before whom Kayla had an audition last year in Europe, predicted a brilliant future for the child. Kayla started her violin studies five years ago in Winnipeg with George Rutherford, continuing with Geza de Kresz at Toronto and Leopold Auer at Chicago. Persinger's success with Yehudi Menuhin caused Kayla's father to bring her to San Francisco last January.

A TRIBUTE TO MR. AND MRS. FREIMAN

Representative Zionists from all over Canada, as well as some of the leaders of the world Zionist organization, will this week-end gather in Ottawa to pay a tribute to two of the most popular and worthy figures in Canadian Jewry.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Freiman, of Ottawa, are about to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. This rather intimate occasion is being seized upon by their friends and admirers throughout the country as an opportunity for expressing the high regard and genuine affection for the celebrants.

Mr. Freiman is head of Canadian Zionism. Mrs. Freiman is leader of Canadian Hadassah. The offices occupied by them involve high honours—the highest honours within the gift of Canadian Jewry. But they also involve tremendous responsibilities. They call for hard labour and constant personal sacrifice. Leadership in Zionism is much more difficult and trying than leadership in philanthropic endeavours. In the sphere of charity the objects are definite. The needs are clearly determined. It is a matter of obtaining funds to purchase the necessary amount of relief. The support generally comes freely and readily. The public is susceptible to appeals for charity. Not so in the sphere of Zionism. Here principles and policies are ever in conflict. There are interpretations and philosophies of basic conditions to be established. There are constantly shifting appraisals of new situations which must be dealt with. There are economic factors and there are cultural and temperamental factors to be taken into account. Zionism as a movement runs athwart many entrenched prejudices and die-hard notions. Leadership in Zionism means a battle against criticism within and opposition, often unfair, without. It is always [illegible]

The appreciation due to leaders in Zionism is therefore all the greater, and it is meet that opportunities should be taken to convey to the leaders words of encouragement. Of course, in living movements like Zionism, criticism and valid opposition are in themselves tributes to leadership. They are the whetstones on which the edge of leadership is sharpened. Nevertheless it is cheering even to the most case-hardened of leaders at times to be tendered evidence of affection by the co-workers in the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Freiman have been exemplary in their devotion to the ideal which they are serving. Mr. Freiman has even given generously of his time and wealth to further the cause. Mrs. Freiman has often gone to the extreme lengths of placing her very life in jeopardy in serving Jewish interests.

On this occasion we are happy to join Canadian Jewry in extending felicitations to the celebrants. It is particularly pleasing to be able to share in the festivities in view of the fact that Mrs. Freiman has but recently recovered from a very serious illness. Jewish leaders, particularly those engaged in Zionist labours, are often the targets for brickbats of criticism—a necessary and healthy condition. And it is also desirable that they realize that loyal service to an ideal is properly and fully appreciated.

MENORAH NEWS

At an open meeting held Sunday night, November 11, at the Holy Blossom Chambers, Rabbi S. Sachs of Goel Tzedec Synagogue spoke on "The Bible" or "A Jewish National Art Gallery." He gave his audience of over a hundred a picture of the various national characteristics depicted in visualized art galleries, describing the predominant type of the Chinese, the Hindu and the Roman personalities in contrast to the Hebrew. The Bible, he felt, was not a mere historical sequence of events, but a reflection of the Hebrew personality in the persons of its colourful characters. Next meeting Saturday, November 17, at 4 p.m., at Sigma Tau Fraternity House, 39 Willcocks Street, for members only. A paper by S. Bochner on "The Influence of Science upon Judaism," after which the topic will be read and discussed.
